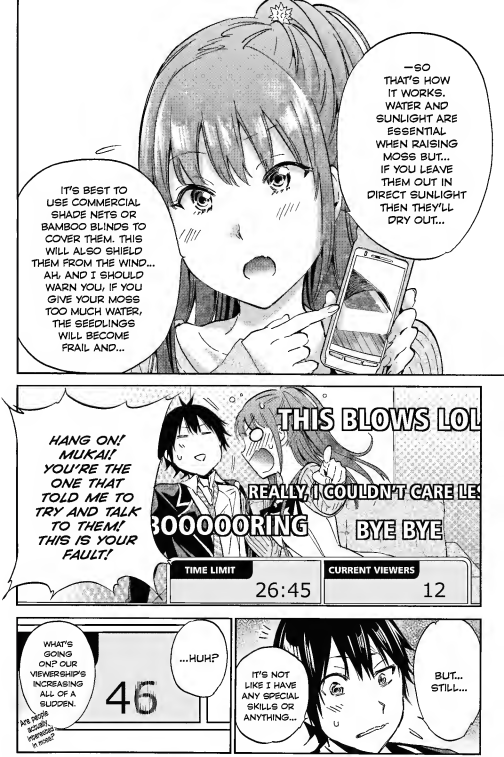
WHAT THE HECK SHOULD WE DO?!



—SO THAT'S HOW IT WORKS. WATER AND SUNLIGHT ARE ESSENTIAL WHEN RAISING MOSS BUT... IF YOU LEAVE THEM OUT IN DIRECT SUNLIGHT THEN THEY'LL DRY OUT...
IT'S BEST TO USE COMMERCIAL SHADE NETS OR BAMBOO BLINDS TO COVER THEM. THIS WILL ALSO SHIELD THEM FROM THE WIND... AH, AND I SHOULD WARN YOU, IF YOU GIVE YOUR MOSS TOO MUCH WATER, THE SEEDLINGS WILL BECOME FRAIL AND...

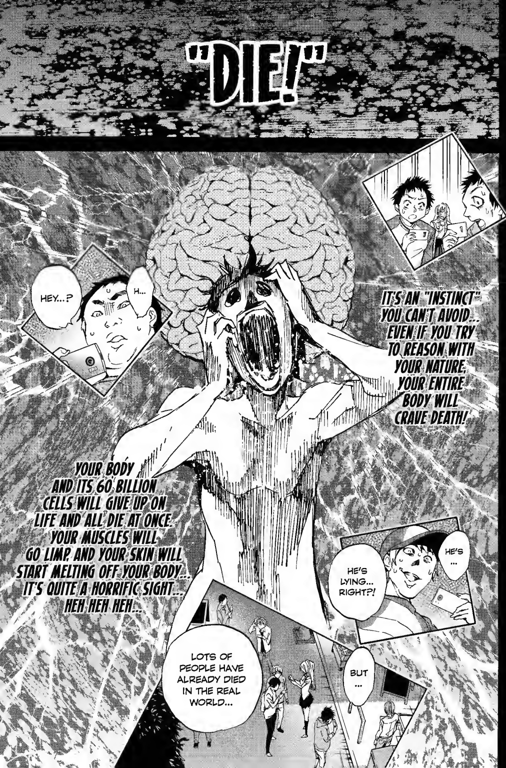
A BOMB ...?!
THESE BOMBS WERE SHOWN TO YOU ONCE A MINUTE FOR 1/3000 SECONDS, FOR A TOTAL OF 27 TIMES...
NEUROLOGICALLY SPEAKING, CERTAIN IMAGES, ARRANGEMENTS, COLORS, AND MOVEMENTS CAN STIMULATE THE ENTIRE BRAIN... AND THE BRAIN WILL MAKE YOUR ENTIRE BODY FOLLOW A "CERTAIN COMMAND"...



"DIE!"
H...
HEY...?
IT'S AN "INSTINCT" YOU CAN'T AVOID... EVEN IF YOU TRY TO REASON WITH YOUR NATURE, YOUR ENTIRE BODY WILL CRAVE DEATH!
YOUR BODY AND ITS 60 BILLION CELLS WILL GIVE UP ON LIFE AND ALL DIE AT ONCE. YOUR MUSCLES WILL GO LIMP, AND YOUR SKIN WILL START MELTING OFF YOUR BODY... IT'S QUITE A HORRIFIC SIGHT... HEH HEH HEH...
HE'S ...
HE'S LYING... RIGHT?!
BUT ...
LOTS OF PEOPLE HAVE ALREADY DIED IN THE REAL WORLD...

Dear Nanako—
I was too embarrassed to say this in front of you, so I decided to write it in a card.

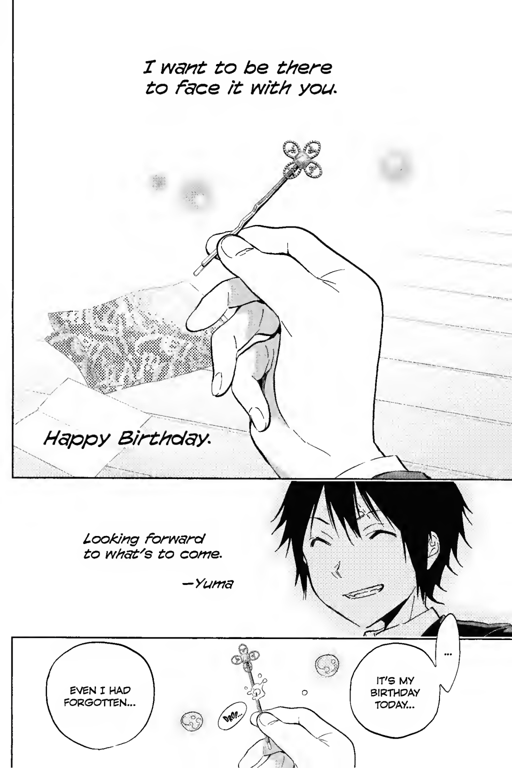
Well, it's April 25th, your first birthday since we started going out, so I thought I'd get a little something for you.
Knowing me, I probably just randomly threw this at you, but it's just because I'm shy, so don't worry about it (lol).
AH...
When I first met you I thought, "Man, she's a really gloomy person," but since then you've surprised me with how strong you've become! You even started practicing kendo...
There's no advice left for me to give!
But I can't really say that you won't experience hardship—there might be some things in the future that you wouldn't want to face, even as you are now.
So when that time comes...



I want to be there
to face it with you.
Happy Birthday.
Looking forward

It's the first time I've ever changed magazines for my serial publications. But this is the second time I've been published in a weekly magazine, so I thought "I can handle this!" But I underestimated just how much work it is. It's been pretty difficult (lol). I'll do my best to keep up with the speed of weekly publications!

A symbol of three or four forward slashes following a statement is used to express one's cheeks blushing and thus denotes shyness or embarrassment. Though this has been used by Japanese netizens for a long time, its usage came into prominence starting around 2010 on sites like Twitter and 2chan.

HWAA?!
Marble's puzzling reaction comes from a specific kao-emoji that gained notoriety in recent years on social media services like Twitter. The original kao-emoji is (´◁`)ﾊﾟｧ and it is meant to resemble a face with two hands palms-out followed by the expression "paa" which could be interpreted as the sound of a bubble bursting or a sort of sigh. So what does it actually mean? The truth is that there is no clear meaning to it. It is more or less regarded as an absurd expression—an answer when there's no real answer—and that is probably why Marble chose to make that face when questioned by the contestants.

LIVE HOST
"Live Host" is more or less a direct translation of the Japanese term, n*aman*u*shi*, which has its origins in the Japanese streaming video service Nico Nico Douga. Nico Nico Douga is similar to YouTube, but separates itself with specific features, like the ability to place comments onto videos as they're playing. Live broadcasts are also a much bigger part of Nico Nico than its American equivalent, and so there are many terms specific to live broadcasts, like "Live Host."

8888 is Internet slang often used on social media services such as Twitter to indicate applause. The more 8s a user writes, the more they like the content they are commenting on. The reason for using 8 originates in the Japanese language itself. 8 is pronounced "hachi," and the onomatopoeia for clapping is "pachi." Since they are similar in sound, 8 (hachi) is written, but is read as "pachi." This form of wordplay, which is called goroawase, can often be seen in Japanese, but has an even greater presence in Japanese netspeak.

CHINTOMO AND MAKEUP TUTORIALS
Chintomo is a syllabic reversal of "Tomochin," the nickname of Tomomi Itano, a member of popular idol group AKB48. In this panel, the woman is hosting a stream of a makeup tutorial. In Japan, makeup tutorials on how to make yourself look like a celebrity are very popular. Using different shades of foundation, eye shadow, eyeliner, and other products, they are able to change the appearance of their face to look like a celebrity. They often use masks to hide their nose and mouth, features that are much harder to change.

YURI, LO
WOOO

YURI
Yuri describes a genre of Japanese media that contains female homosexual content. It is also known by the term Girls' Love and is the counterpart to BL or yaoi, which features male homosexual content. In Japanese, the word "yuri" itself literally translates to "lily" and is said to have originated from the gay magazine Barazoku as a contrasting term to its "bara" (EN: Rose). The term bara also describes media featuring homosexual content, except with hyper-masculine men as highlighted characters, created by men for men, as opposed to yaoi which is primarily created by women for women.

┌(┌ ^O^)┐ (BL/HOMO EMOJI) AND UHO!
This particular emoji originated on Twitter as a meme for the purpose of mocking fujoshi (simply put, a female otaku who is primarily interested in manga portraying male-to-male sexuality). This emoji is supposed to depict a vaguely humanoid figure crawling along on all fours, with its mouth open saying, "homoooo." It's since been taken up by fujoshi for use in fanart and online postings.

Uho! also has links to fujoshi and is a comment typically used when two men get into a close, potentially steamy encounter. The full version of the term is "Uho! Ii otoko!" (EN: Ooh! Now that's a nice man!) and it comes from Junichi Yamakawa's Kuso Miso Technique, a one-shot manga originally published in the gay magazine Barazoku. Phrases from this manga like, "Uho! Ii otoko!" and "Yaranaika?" (EN: Wanna do it?) also became intensely popular parody memes on the Japanese-speaking internet and still elicit humorous reactions to this day.

SHIBUYA SCRAMBLE CROSSING
A "scramble crossing" is an intersection that allows pedestrians from all different directions to cross while traffic is stopped. The most famous of these in Tokyo—if not in all of Japan —sits adjacent to Shibuya Station. Shibuya Station is one of the busiest stations in Japan and so this famous intersection constantly sees incredibly heavy foot traffic. It is often prominently displayed in Japanese media to represent scenes taking place in Shibuya, Tokyo, much like Times Square is used to represent New York City.
It has also gained international fame, being featured in movies like Lost in Translation, and The Fast and the Furious: Tokyo Drift.
